

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREFACE.....	ix
MESSAGE
Ambassador Liu Guijin .....	xiii
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS .....	xv
AUTHOR'S NOTES
Sharon T. Freeman .....	xvii
CHAPTER 1: INTRODUCTION AND BOOK STRUCTURE.....	2
CHAPTER 2: HIGHLIGHTS AND RECURRING THEMES.....	8
CHAPTER 3: FRONTLINE PERSPECTIVES: VIEWS OF AFRICANIST
China, Africa, and Senegal
Abdoulaye Wade .....	18
A New Development Partner: New Opportunities
Fetus Mogae .....	21
Common Ground
Jendayi E. Frazer .....	29
New Directions
Amina Ali .....	32
Applying Ingenuity Where it Counts
Achike Udenwa .....	35
Don't Ask What China Is Doing: Ask What We Are doing
Alcinda Antonio Abreu .....	38
China: A Solid Partner
Ombeni Y. Sefue .....	40
Capitalists, Comrades and Carpetbaggers: The Chinese in Africa
Christopher Alden .....	46
The Importance of Learning from Each Other
David Shinn .....	48
China and Africa: An Opportunity for the Continent to Realize a Development Dividend
Rosa Whitaker .....	51

CHAPTER 4: PERSPECTIVES COMPARING CHINA AND U.S.
“SOFT POWER” APPROACHES

— China Surpasses U.S. As Leader in Sub-Saharan Africa?
Sharon T. Freeman ..... 56

— China and the U.S. in Africa: A Strategic Competition or Opportunity for Cooperation?
Princeton Lyman..... 75

— The Corporate View of Investing in Africa – An Excerpt from “A Conversation Behind Closed Doors: How Corporate America
Really Views Africa”
Scott Eisner ..... 79

CHAPTER 5: FRONTLINE PERSPECTIVES: VIEWS FROM AND ABOUT CHINA

From China

— China- Africa Relations and China’s Africa Policy
Ministry of Foreign Affairs, China ..... 84

— China’s Immigrants in Africa and China’s Africa Policy:
Implications for China-African Cooperation
Li Anshan ..... 94

— A Chinese Perspective of Africa
He Wenping ..... 106

— Green Finance for Green Industry and a Green Economy
Victor Gao..... 111

— A Conversation With Stakeholders in China
Sharon T. Freeman ..... 114

About China

— Trust in the Sino-African Context
Marvin Cole ..... 121

— Looking and Learning in All Directions
Dewardric (DL) McNeal ..... 126

— The Dragon, Lion, and Spider
Claire Nelson..... 131

— Taking Advantage of “Win-Win” Possibilities
Ken Nealy ..... 135

— Chinese Global Priorities and African Growth: The Context of Chinese
Energy Policy
Edward Friedman..... 139

---

CHAPTER 6: PERSPECTIVES ON CORPORATE CHINA

Selected China Government Practices and China's Aid to Africa Sharon T. Freeman .....	144
"China Inc." and Corporate Social Responsibility Sharon T. Freeman .....	151

CHAPTER 7: CASE STUDY PERSPECTIVES

Ethiopia: The Only Non-Colonized Country
└ China in Ethiopia: Just-in-Time Peter H. Gebre .....	164
└ China, Ethiopia, and Footwear Richard Siegel .....	184
Namibia: The Last Country to Gain Independence
└ "David and Goliath" Sharon T. Freeman .....	187
Ghana: The First Country to Receive Independence
└ 52 Years of Independence Sharon T. Freeman .....	202
└ Toward Sustainable Development in Ghana: The China Factor Jerry Joe E. K. Harrison .....	212
Angola: China's Largest Trading Partner
└ China's Place in Angola's Foreign Policy Alex Vines .....	217
└ A Marriage of (In) Convenience? Fernando Paiva .....	228
Sudan: China's Thorniest Political Problem
└ Evolving Relationships Alec Khoc .....	235
└ China's Interests In and Policy Toward Africa Richard Williamson .....	238
└ The People of Sudan Can't Wait Sidiga Wabash .....	245

---

CHAPTER 8: AN INFRASTRUCTURE PERSPECTIVE ON THE STATE OF AFRICA'S DEVELOPMENT

└ Africa's Infrastructure: Roads or Rules? Sharon T. Freeman .....	250
--	-----

CHAPTER 9: BIRD'S EYE VIEWS

└ New Force Seeking Appropriate Opportunity David Robinson .....	268
└ China Style: Lessons for Africa James Shiwati .....	272
└ An Idea Whose Time Has Come: China and Africa Doing Business David Cutting .....	275
└ Africa's Paradox and China's Entry into Africa Luciano Borin .....	280
└ The Three Faces of African Leaders Regina Amadi .....	286
└ With a Mustard Seed... Eric Chinje .....	290
└ It's About Building Local Capacity Michael Levett .....	294
└ China is a Reality: Deal With It J. Joseph Grandmaison .....	297

CHAPTER 10: AFRICAN DIASPORA AND AFRICANIST PERSPECTIVES

└ Diplomats
└ Partnerships Should Benefit African Citizens Alice Dear .....	300
└ China in Africa from the Perspective of Public Diplomacy Claudia E. Anyaso .....	310
└ On Remembering Secretary of Commerce Ron Brown and Crafting An Agenda for Sustainable Commerce Lauri J. Fitz-Pegado .....	312
└ If Agriculture Doesn't Get Developed Neither Does Anything Else Mattie R. Sharpless .....	318
└ China, Africa, and the African Diaspora: Three-Way Deals Joseph Huggins .....	322
└ The U.S. and China in Africa: Prospects for the Future Charles Stith .....	325

Development Practitioners and Civil Society Representatives
China's New El Dorado Damien Pwono .....	328
Intraregional Trade: Africa's Best Bet Franklin Moore .....	334
Knowledge is the Wealth of Nations Mora McLean .....	337
A China-Africa Partnership Will Help Africa Compete E. Diane White .....	342
You Can Give People A Fish But... Jeannine Scott .....	348
Building a Constituency for Africa Melvin Foote .....	351
Business
Doing "Good" Business Together Daniel Anagho .....	355
A U.S. Africa Strategy? Jack Edlow .....	359
The Landscape for Small and Medium Enterprise Investment Rodney MacAlister .....	361
Scholars
A Converging China? Ernie Wilson .....	364
Mariage de Raison: China a Force for the Good of All? Marcel Kittisou .....	368
China, Africa, the African Diaspora, and Howard University Alem Hailu .....	375
Calling It the Way They See It: Straight Talk from Africans and Africanists
Shaka Ssali .....	385
John Kachamila .....	386
Emeka Nwankwo .....	388
Bert Ubamadu .....	389
Ludwick Hayden .....	390
Gloria Herndon .....	392
Gregory Simpkins .....	393
Myles Matthews .....	394
Carole Henderson Tyson .....	396
Christine Martey-Ochola .....	397
Sarian Bauma .....	398
Juanita Britton .....	399
Thomas J. Elzey .....	401

└ Focus Group With the Prince George’s County, Maryland Africa Trade Office and The African Business Sharon T. Freeman .....	402
└ Snapshot of African American Population: By the Numbers .....	411
└ African Immigrants in the U.S.....	413

CHAPTER 11: WOMEN HOLD UP 75 PERCENT OF AFRICAN SKIES Sharon T. Freeman .....	416
--	-----

CHAPTER 12: YOUTH UNEMPLOYMENT: A MAJOR CHALLENGE FOR AFRICAN COUNTRIES Sharon T. Freeman .....	424
--	-----

AFTERWORD .....	429
------------------------	-----

LIST OF TABLES

Chapter 6: Perspectives on Corporate China
Table 1: Selected African Countries with Large Reported Aid and Investment Projects, 2002-2007 .....	150
Table 2: Selected Major PRC Financing and Aid-Related Economic Projects in Africa .....	150
Chapter 7: Case Study Perspectives
Table 1: Ethiopia’s Economic Growth By Major Sectors. ....	166
Table 2: Diaspora and Foreign Investment Flow to Ethiopia (2004-2008) .....	167
Table 3: Chinese Investment in Ethiopia (1997-2009).....	168
Table 4: Loans/ Grants from International Financial Institutions EFY 1997 (2004/2005) in Million USD (Commitments).....	170
Table 5: China’s Exploration and Production Assets in Angola.....	224

LIST OF BOXES

Box 4.1: China Surpasses U.S. as Leader in Sub-Saharan Africa .....	56
Box 6.1: Special Report: China Storms Africa .....	151
Box 6.2: China Saps Mozambique of Timber Resources .....	153
Box 6.3: Hu Jintao’s Speech on Climate Change .....	156
Box 7.1: How a Chinese Construction Company Has Won the Hearts and Minds of its Clients.....	171
Box 7.2: ZTE’s Strategy to Gain Market In Ethiopia’s Telecommunication Sector (2008).....	174
Box 7.3: Ethiopian Standards Authority Says Quality Compromised .....	179
Box 8.1: “U.S.-Africa Trade Relations: Creating a Platform for Economic Growth” .....	264

PREFACE

The topic of China in Africa evokes emotions; indeed, it is an emotional issue and emotions are about feelings. The time has come to acknowledge the importance of feelings in helping to explain the phenomenon, which is why this book includes a collection of stakeholder perspectives that are from the heart. While the number of books being written on the subject of China in Africa is growing daily, many include the dispassionate views of “talking heads.” This book also includes “talking hearts.”

Essayists speak passionately about their personal backgrounds and about their work and lives in Africa and China, which conditions and informs their perspectives. Far from suggesting that they know the answers, many are musing and pondering out loud searching for answers. More questions are raised than answers given, but questions are important as they help form a basis for future conversations.

From many perspectives, the relationships of China in Africa are veiled in mystery and secrets. Are the Chinese trying to take over Africa, are they buying up all of the available land in Africa, are they in it just to extract oil and mineral resources? What are they doing, why are they doing it, how are they doing it, and how can I be a part of it? Importantly, how does China’s approach differ from that of other development partners?

Collectively, the Europeans, Indians, Lebanese, and the U.S. have been in Africa for centuries yet one can walk into any living room in Africa, Europe, and the U.S. and the main topic of conversation among those who care about Africa’s development will invariably be about China in Africa. Why?

Indeed, something different is happening with the Chinese in Africa, something that is profound, game changing, and everlasting. Is it a good thing or a bad thing?

In fact, it is complicated. Africa’s problems are not simple and neither are the answers. “Rome, indeed China, was not built in a day.”

There are many perspectives on the modus operandi and impact of China in Africa and this book captures as many as possible, especially of African and African Diaspora stakeholders whose voices are not always raised in the discussion.

Some perspectives are positive and some are negative, but all acknowledge that with the Chinese a new day is dawning in Africa.

After reading the hundreds of pages of perspectives shared one big “take away” message is that it is not so much about what is being done, but about how it is being done that accounts for the difference in the Chinese approach.

---

The Chinese introduced a new element into the equation: human feelings. While everyone in the development community easily talks about human rights, few talk about human feelings—and there are a lot of human feelings involved in the China-Africa relationship. Pride, prejudice, respect, humility, solidarity, complementarity—top the list.

When the Chinese invited African leaders to China en masse to roll out its Africa strategy, and treated African leaders with the respect for which they longed, it was a game changer. When the Chinese could say, “My brothers, we have both been through a lot and in the dark times we supported you and you supported us—now, let’s build on our common bonds,” it resonated. When China could hold its head high and say, “We never called you those bad names; we don’t wish to dictate your development path, we simply want to do business,” that also resonated.

The positive reaction to this by African leaders has been perceived by many in the development community as a mere desire by African leaders to avoid Western conditionalities and good governance, but while that might be true in some cases, it doesn’t tell the whole story. The bigger story is that Africans have been emotionally wounded and their leaders have oftentimes been powerless to assert themselves. They are poor and they are down, but they are not out, thanks in no small measure to the Chinese. In their relationships with China they have found a powerful partner who is powerful enough to help them chart a new course, and hopefully one that helps them stay on the course of good governance.

While many question the course, some going so far as to suggest that it will lead to more debt and to a new form of colonialization, African leaders are ready to go down the road with the Chinese and see where it leads. After all, what do they have to lose? After decades of doing it the way the development institutions have dictated, what do they have to show for it? They have rules, but no roads.

When Africans look at China what do they see? They see success. When they look at what the Chinese have accomplished in Africa thus far, they see both success and storms brewing. On the positive side of the ledger, the Chinese are building infrastructure at lower costs in shorter timeframes; they are also building the projects that the Africans have prioritized; and their involvement in their extractive industries and economies have given them an alternative buyer and has caused the world to have a second look at Africa.

On the negative side of the ledger, they see that Chinese businesses are moving into their countries in unprecedented numbers and are “out-competing” local businesses. Moreover, they see that their institutions lack the capacity to handle the involvement of the Chinese in their economies. African institutions from customs to immigration, environment, standards, and labor, often do not have the technical capacity to effectively control, regulate, and monitor Chinese private actors. Furthermore, African private businesses lack access to financing and other inputs that are required to be able to effectively compete against Chinese businesses.

---

This is a conundrum. On the one hand, China's engagement in Africa as a development partner has brought so many good things, but on the other hand, Chinese private actors are causing major disruptions in the economies of some African countries.

This is where another human emotion is evoked: Prayer. Everyone is praying that it all works out. Right now, the train is moving at lightning speed and no one can jump off. The prayer is that just as China came through its many difficulties after the Cultural Revolution, perhaps with its wisdom somewhere down the road the problems in its relationship with Africa can be worked out. While the precise formula for the solution is not known, ingredients will probably include more controls and restraint on the Chinese side and more capacity building on the African side.

The sign posts are positive despite some turbulence. The China Africa relationship is strong and is not just based on deeds of today or yesterday; there are real connections between the people that go beyond business. For instance, Chinese and Africans hold similar views about the interactions of the forces of nature and society, respect for ancestors, worldly understandings of life, and concepts of healing based on holistic concepts of restoring balance and social harmony. In the cultures of both traditions, sacred mountains, rivers and forest sites are incorporated in the creeds of co-existence. Elements of continuity and change in their communities are incorporated within rituals, festivals, cultural performances and community events that summon the symbolic participation of ancestors, elders, healers and representatives of shared culture and history.

For the Chinese, such vital forces and viewpoints are embraced within the concepts of "Yin and Yang," which connote complementary duality of dynamic interactions. In contrast to the Western understanding of polarized opposition, for the Chinese, such forces are interlinked whereby some are associated more with "Yin" than with "Yang," but both are always present balancing each other out.

The hope and the prayer is that somehow the "Yin and Yang" of the China Africa relationship balances out. ●

Dr. Sharon T. Freeman
Author/Publisher